Book Concept: Aurora Teagarden Mystery: Last Scene Alive

Logline: When a local film crew recreating a classic horror movie suffers a real-life tragedy, Aurora Teagarden must unravel a deadly mystery where fact blends seamlessly with fiction, before the killer strikes again.

Storyline/Structure:

The novel opens with the arrival of a film crew in the quaint town of Lawrenceton, Georgia. They're shooting a remake of a cult classic horror film, "The Last Scene Alive," a movie notorious for a string of on-set accidents during its original production. As Aurora, a member of the Real Murders Club, observes the filming, a chilling parallel begins to emerge between the fictional murders in the movie and real-life events. A crew member is found dead, the method mirroring a scene from the film. Aurora, along with her friends and the local police, finds herself embroiled in a complex investigation that blurs the lines between reality and cinematic fiction. Suspects emerge from both the cast and crew, each with secrets and motives hidden behind the glittering facade of Hollywood. The investigation will lead Aurora down a rabbit hole of old grudges, hidden rivalries, and long-buried secrets, all connected to the original cursed production of "The Last Scene Alive." The climax involves a thrilling confrontation during the final filming of the movie's climactic scene, where Aurora must use her sharp wit and observational skills to expose the killer before another life is lost.
